

AVOIDING WORK-RELATED EYE INJURIES

Eye injury can rob an employee not only for their sight, but also their independence and ability to work. A single serious eye injury can leave a person disable for life – but can easily be prevented.

What types of injuries can occur?

The most serious injuries are caused by:

FOREIGN OBJECTS	CHEMICALS
CUTTING OBJECTS	BLUNT TRAUMA

But dust, concrete shards, metal shavings, wire, caustic fluids are also harmful.

If you don't take adequate precautions, it can cost you: in production time, insurance premiums, fines and compensation claims.

What do I need to do to minimize risk?

- Assess workplace hazards
- Implement control measures to reduce risk of eye injury
- Wear appropriate Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), including eye protection, for workers.

Remember – eye protection is a LAST RESORT and eye hazards should be adequately controlled in other ways.

Top tips to reduce eye injuries at work

- Provide a safe working environment – implement controls to minimize eye hazards (eg machine guards or engineering controls)
- Ensure availability of protective eyewear appropriate for the job (eg heat, chemicals and dust) and is easy to use
- Replace any damaged or broken eyewear
- Put warning signs
- Provide appropriate first aid and/or eyewash on site
- Remind employees about proper use and limitations of eyewear
- Focus on new employees and visitors
- Get feedback from staff – is it working?
