HEAD TO TOE PROTECTION WITH PPE

Personal protective equipment, commonly referred to as "PPE", is equipment worn to minimize exposure to hazards that cause serious workplace injuries and illnesses. These injuries and illnesses may result from contact with chemical, radiological, physical, electrical, mechanical, or other workplace hazards.

When the hazard cannot be removed or controlled adequately, personal protective equipment (PPE) may be used. PPE is considered as the last level of protection when all other methods are not available or possible.
